Title of the Workshop: “Clinical Research Opportunities: The Current Scenario and Prospects”

Date of the Event: 14-12-2021

Venue: Virtual Session

Number of Participants:

Co-ordinator: Dr. Krishna Rao Jagarlamudi, Assistant Professor, Dept. Of Biochemistry

Workshop Objective: The purpose of this workshop is to create awareness among the students about Clinical research opportunities in pharma industry.

The department of chemistry & biochemistry is organized a One-day workshop on “Clinical Research Opportunities: The Current Scenario and Prospects” is mainly aimed for the students of MSRCASC and other institutes.

Mr. Babu Rao has explained few important points. Clinical Research provides a gateway to a number of opportunities in the future. Clinical research is the study of health and illness in people. It is the way we learn how to prevent, diagnose and treat illness. Clinical research describes many different elements of scientific investigation. Simply put, it involves human participants and helps translate basic research (done in labs) into new treatments and information to benefit patients. Clinical trials as well as research in epidemiology, physiology and pathophysiology, health services, education, outcomes and mental health can all fall under the clinical research umbrella.

Clinical trials are done to determine whether new drugs or treatments are safe and effective. Clinical trials are part of a long, careful process which may take many years to complete. First, doctors study a new treatment in the lab. Then they often study the treatment in animals. If a new treatment shows promise, doctors then test the treatment in people via a clinical trial.

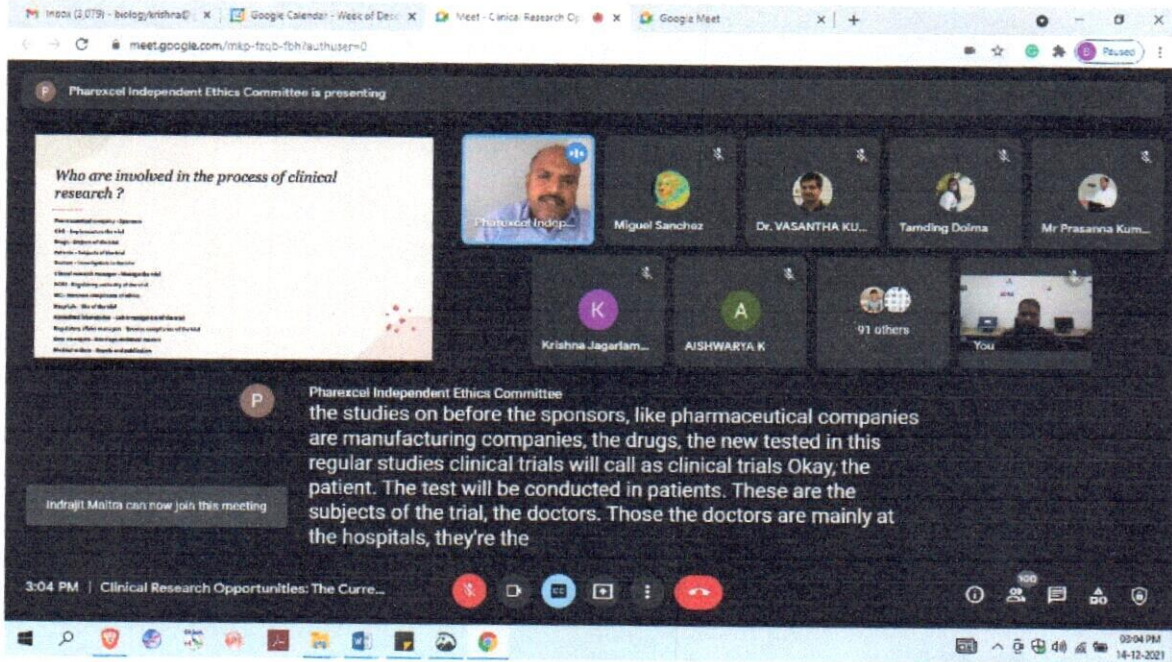

Average starting salary of different specialization

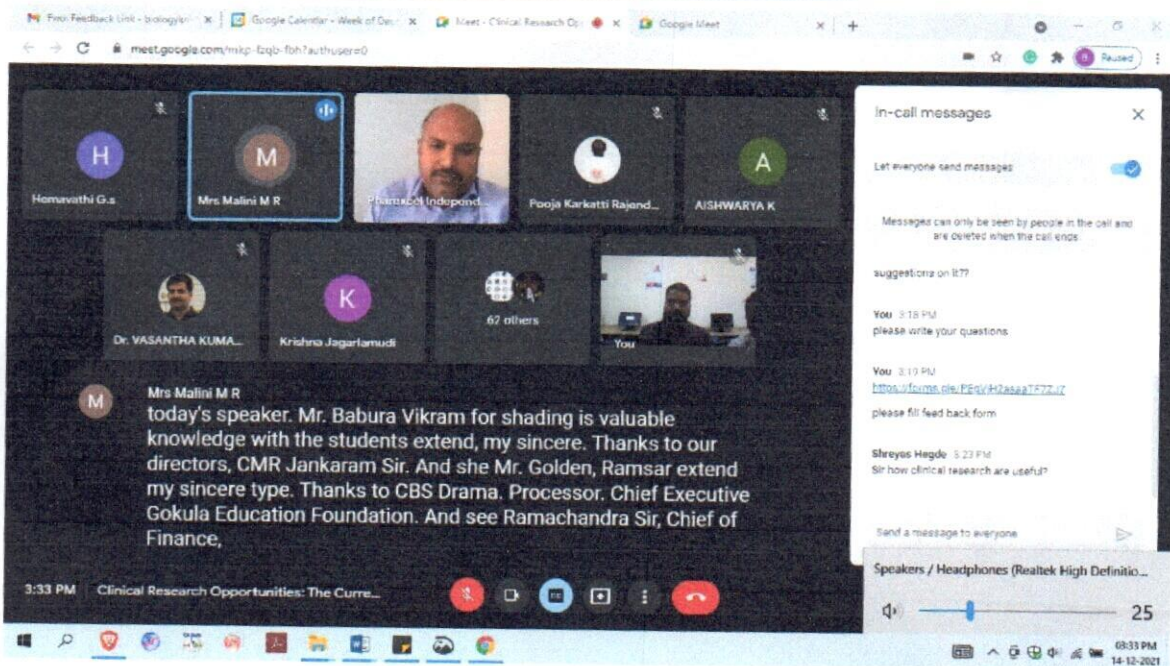

The clinical research associate is in charge of developing the trial system and protocol (in research parlance: the methodology), set up the lab or the centre that will be the location of the study, verify and collect the data that is used for and collected from the study, and, in the end, write the reports that present the final result of the study. Occasionally, this entails writing formal papers that will be printed in journals or as a release.

Program Outcome: Students have interacted with speaker and gained knowledge about all job opportunities in clinical research and data management in both Pharma and IT industry
