Event Coordinator: Suma C

The Department of Computer Applications in its continued effort to promote research culture among students and faculty, organized a workshop titled "Foundation of Research Aptitude and Methodology" on 24/09/2025. The resource person for the session was Dr. Sowbhagya R, a renowned academician and researcher in the field of Science.

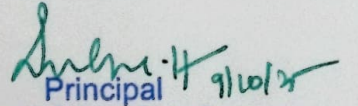

Objective of the Workshop: Enhance participants' understanding of the fundamentals of research. Build a strong foundation in research methodology. Equip young researchers with tools and techniques required for academic research. Encourage critical thinking and a scientific approach to problem-solving.

Dr. Sowbhagya is a distinguished scholar with significant contributions to academic research and methodology. With extensive experience in mentoring students and conducting workshops across various institutions, Dr. Sowbhagya brought insightful perspectives and practical knowledge to the session.

Highlights of the workshop: Introduction to research and its significance in academia. Types of research: Qualitative vs. Quantitative. Formulating research questions and hypotheses. Literature review techniques and tools. Research design, sampling methods, and data collection. Ethical considerations in research. Data analysis overview and interpretation. Tips for publishing research papers and theses.

The session was delivered in an interactive format, combining presentations, real-life examples, discussions, and Q&A interactions. Dr. Sowbhagya engaged the participants through practical insights and encouraged critical thinking throughout the workshop.

Participants appreciated the clarity, depth, and relevance of the content delivered. Many expressed that the workshop boosted their confidence to undertake research projects and apply appropriate methodologies effectively. The department extends heartfelt thanks to Dr. Sowbhagya for her valuable contribution and to all participants for their enthusiastic involvement.
